Can New Zealand recharge EV batteries?

In a New Zealand first, Counties Energy is completing the life-cycle for used electric vehicle (EV) batteries by converting them into its Berm Battery energy storage system for recharging EVs.

How much does a battery cost in New Zealand?

The mean charging spot price was $123/MWh and the median was $132/MWh. As New Zealand electrifies, more grid-scale batteries will support the growing renewable energy supply. Meridian Energy is building a 100MW (200MWh) battery near Ruakaka in sunny Northland. This battery is expected to be commissioned in September 2024.

How does a New Zealand car battery repurpose scheme work?

Here's how the scheme would work: Batteries are registered when they arrive in New Zealand. The ownership of the battery will then be tracked (say if the car is sold to a new owner). When the battery can no longer power a car, it will be repurposed for a second use.

Is the berm battery New Zealand's First Second-Life Battery?

Officially launched today, the Berm Battery's journey to become New Zealand's first second-life battery system followed a comprehensive planning and certification process which began in 2020 and included two years of testing including in a 'real world' environment. It was commissioned in October 2023.

What are grid-scale batteries & how can they benefit New Zealand?

Grid-scale batteries maximise the benefits of renewable energy and provide extra resilience during times of tight electricity supply. Additionally, these batteries, alongside more renewable generation, will help off-set the retirement of thermal generation and support New Zealand's transition to a low-emissions economy.
