

Is Morocco dependent on Western Sahara for its energy supply?

But these developments have made Morocco partly dependent on Western Sahara for its energy supply. Morocco already gets 18% of its installed wind capacity and 15% of its solar from the occupied territory, and by 2030 that could increase to almost half of its wind and up to a third of its solar.

Will Morocco double green electricity production in Western Sahara?

(Bloomberg) -- Morocco, buoyed by recent foreign recognition of its rule over Western Sahara, plans to double green electricity production in the disputed territory to meet growing demand before it co-hosts the 2030 FIFA World Cup.

What is Western Sahara's green power capacity?

Western Sahara's current green power capacity is about 1.3 gigawatts, or about a quarter of the nation's total renewables capacity. A project to develop a 3-gigawatt cable linking renewable plants in the territory to central Morocco has attracted interest from private investors, said the official.

Is Western Sahara a 'question of decolonisation'?

Western Sahara is the only African territory remaining on the list. It's also the only territory where the administering power column is left blank - a footnote explains the UN considers it a "question of decolonisation which remained to be completed by the people of Western Sahara".

In November last year, the organisation Western Sahara Resource Watch said that "possibly up to 81% of all land that the Moroccan government has allocated for new, gigantic plans for renewable energy, green hydrogen and ammonia, is located outside of Morocco's international borders, in occupied Western Sahara."
